MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY GENERAL

Esteemed Delegates,

It is with great enthusiasm that we welcome you to the Global School of Science Model United Nations 4.0. Over the coming days, you will engage in meaningful discussions, negotiate complex issues, and collaborate to create solutions for the world's most pressing challenges.

This handbook has been carefully prepared to provide you with the knowledge and tools to thrive in the MUN setting. It outlines the procedures, strategies, and tips you'll need whether it's drafting resolutions, delivering persuasive speeches, or navigating committee debates with confidence.

Beyond the rules and structure, MUN offers an opportunity to build your diplomatic, analytical, and leadership skills. By representing your assigned nations, you'll learn to appreciate diverse perspectives and foster respectful dialogue—qualities that define true global citizens.

We encourage you to participate with curiosity, confidence, and decorum. Every speech you deliver, every motion you raise, and every alliance you form will contribute to an unforgettable experience.

As you embark on this journey, remember that GSSMUN 4.0 is not just a conference—it is a community of young minds striving to make an impact. The conversations and friendships you form here will stay with you long after the final gavel falls.

With warm regards,

Jaya Bhattarai
Secretary-General
Global School of Science Model United Nations 4.0

INTRODUCTION TO MODEL UNITED NATIONS

Model United Nations (MUN) is an academic simulation of the United Nations where students take on the roles of country delegates to debate and solve global issues. Participants engage in diplomacy, negotiation, public speaking, and resolution writing, mirroring the real workings of the United Nations.

The concept began in the 1920s as Model League of Nations, evolving into Model UN after the UN's formation in 1945. Since then, MUN has grown into a global educational movement, with conferences held in schools and universities worldwide, shaping future leaders and changemakers.

UNDERSTANDING MUN FRAMEWORK

Model United Nations (MUN) serves as a diplomatic simulation where participants, known as delegates, embody representatives of nations, organizations, or political figures within various committees. Each committee is overseen by a Chair or Director—entrusted with guiding deliberations, maintaining procedural order, and ensuring productive debate. In certain formats, the Executive Board may also provide delegates with constructive feedback at the conclusion of proceedings.

Throughout the conference, delegates engage in intense negotiation, persuasive discourse, and strategic collaboration to address pressing global challenges. Their collective efforts culminate in the formulation of a draft resolution a refined document that encapsulates proposed policies and solutions, ultimately presented for discussion, amendment, and voting by the committee.

DELEGATE AND THEIR ROLES

Definition of a Delegate

A delegate is a person who represents a country, organization, or group in a conference. In the context of Model United Nations (MUN), a delegate is a participant assigned to represent a specific country or organization. They are responsible for researching their entity's policies, articulating its positions in debates and negotiations, and drafting or supporting resolutions, thereby simulating the role of real-world diplomats.

Role of a Delegate

Delegates are responsible for:

- Accurately representing their assigned entity.
- Actively participating in debates, negotiations, and committee work.
- Drafting, presenting, and amending resolutions.
- Collaborating with other delegates to achieve consensus.
- Following all rules of procedure and committee protocols.

Delegate Code of Conduct

Delegates must:

- Maintain professionalism and respect at all times.
- Represent their entity faithfully, avoiding personal bias.
- Conduct thorough and original research.
- Participate actively in all committee activities.
- Uphold decorum in formal and informal settings.

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD

Executive Board (EB)

The Executive Board (commonly called Chairperson, Vice-Chairperson, or other titles depending on the committee) is responsible for managing and guiding committee proceedings. Titles and structure may vary, but their core functions are consistent.

Key Responsibilities:

- Preside Over Sessions: Lead debates, maintain order, and ensure adherence to rules of procedure.
- Facilitate Discussion: Manage speaking times, encourage participation, and clarify procedural points.
- Ensure Fairness: Remain impartial, resolve procedural issues, and monitor compliance with committee rules.
- Support Delegates: Provide guidance on rules, agenda items, and document submissions.

Authority of the Executive Board:

- Enforce rules of procedure.
- They can establish committee-specific rules and protocols in line with Secretariat guidelines, which all delegates are required to follow.
- Their decisions are binding within the committee, ensuring fair, structured, and effective conduct throughout the session

COMMON MUN TERMINOLOGY

1. Position Paper: A formal document submitted by a delegate outlining their assigned country's stance on specific agenda topics. It includes background information, the country's position, and proposed solutions or recommendations.
2. Placard: A visible sign displaying a delegate's country or organization. Delegates use placards to gain recognition to speak, vote, or signal support during committee sessions.
3. Majority: The minimum number of votes required to pass a motion or resolution.
 - Procedural Majority (Simple Majority): More than 50% of delegates present and voting. Used for motions like setting the speakers' list or suspending debate.
 - Substantive Majority (Special Majority): Typically two-thirds of all delegates required to pass a substantive document such as a resolution or treaty.
4. Lobbying: Informal discussions among delegates to gain support for draft resolutions, amendments, or motions. This is a key part of negotiation and coalition-building in MUN.
5. Motion: A formal proposal by a delegate during committee sessions to request a specific action, such as:
 - Motion to Adjourn: Ends the committee session permanently.
 - Motion to Suspend Debate: Temporarily pauses formal debate, often for caucuses or breaks.

- Motion for Moderated/Unmoderated Caucus: Requests a temporary shift in the debate format.
6. Amendment: A proposal to modify, add, or remove text in a draft resolution.
- Friendly Amendment: Accepted by all sponsors and incorporated directly into the resolution.
 - Unfriendly Amendment: Not accepted by the sponsors and must be voted on separately.
7. Dais / Executive Board (EB): Committee leadership, including Chairpersons, Vice-Chairpersons, or Presidents, responsible for managing debate, enforcing rules, and guiding proceedings.
8. Crisis: A fictional (usually) committee scenario where unexpected events unfold, requiring delegates to respond with solutions in real-time.
9. Decorum: The expected standard of behavior, professionalism, and etiquette during committee sessions.
10. Clause: A section of a resolution.
- Preambulatory Clause: Provides context, background, and rationale for the resolution.
 - Operative Clause: Contains actionable recommendations or directives the committee intends to implement.
- 12. Binding Agreement: A formal document, resolution, or treaty requiring action by member states or delegates.

13. Bloc: A group of delegates who share similar positions and collaborate to draft resolutions, amendments, or influence debate.

14. Agenda: The list of topics scheduled for discussion during the committee. It sets the flow and focus of debate.

15. Resolution / Draft Resolution:

Draft Resolution: A preliminary document submitted for discussion and debate. Includes preambulatory and operative clauses and may be amended before adoption.

Resolution: The final, formally adopted document representing the committee's collective decision on an issue.

16. Procedural Vote: A vote on matters that affect the flow of debate (e.g., motions, caucuses).

17. Quorum: The minimum number of delegates required to conduct official business. For example, the UN General Assembly requires one-third of all members to be present.

18. Second: A delegate expressing support for a motion, indicating agreement to bring it forward. The delegate who seconds a motion cannot vote against it in the formal procedure.

19. Secretariat: The central organizing team of the MUN conference, led by the Secretary-General. Responsible for overall management, approvals, and ensuring smooth conference operations.

20. Substantive Document: Any policy-focused document, including draft resolutions, treaties, covenants, conventions, or agreements.

21. Substantive Vote: A vote on a substantive document, typically requiring a two-thirds majority for adoption.

22. Special Speakers' List: A speaking order used in crisis or special committees, granting delegates opportunities to speak in designated scenarios.

23. Unmoderated Caucus: A temporary session allowing delegates to move freely, negotiate, and collaborate without formal moderation. Formal language is not required, but courtesy and decorum must be maintained.

24. Veto: The absolute right of certain delegates (e.g., P5 members in the Security Council) to block a substantive document, regardless of majority support.

25. Working Paper: An informal draft used as a precursor to a resolution. Serves as a collaborative record and framework for drafting formal documents.

26. A Chit is a small written note exchanged between delegates or between a delegate and the EB during committee sessions. Chits are used to ask questions, request information, submit proposals, or communicate discreetly without interrupting formal debate.

RULES OF PROCEDURE

The Rules of Procedure (RoPs) in Model United Nations (MUN) are guidelines that govern how committee sessions are conducted. They ensure orderly and structured debates, facilitate discussions, and outline the procedures for drafting, presenting, and voting on resolutions.

Standard Flow of the Committee

- Roll Call
- Agenda Setting
- GSL
- Motions (Moderated Caucuses, Unmoderated Caucuses)

Agenda

The agenda in Model United Nations (MUN) refers to the topic or issue that will be discussed during the conference. It serves as the outline for the sessions and helps delegates focus on specific subjects during their debates.

ROLL CALL

At the beginning of each Session and upon the motion to begin Roll call , the Executive Board shall call in an alphabetical order on all Member States in order to state their status of attendance.

Member States may reply “present” or “present and voting”. Representatives stating just “present and voting” shall have no right to abstain from any vote on the substantial matter. If any of the Representatives were not present during the Roll Call, upon their arrival they shall send a note to the EB members clarifying their status of presence.

Setting the Agenda

Setting the agenda is the first step to be considered by the committee.

Delegates can propose only topics as put forward by the Secretariat in the provisional agenda, i.e. the topics which were set by the Secretariat prior the conference.

To raise this motion, the delegate : The delegate of [] would like to raise a motion to set the agenda of the committee to [].

DEBATE

The three modes of Debate can be introduced during

1. (Formal Formal session) General Speaker's List
2. (Formal Informal Session) Moderated Caucus
3. (Informal Informal Session) Un-Moderated Caucus

GENERAL SPEAKERS LIST

The speaking time for the General Speakers' List is automatically set at one minute for each delegate. If delegates wish to be added to the General Speakers' List, they should simply raise their placards when the Chair says "Delegates who wish to be added to the General Speakers' List, please raise your placard." They can also add themselves to the List by passing a note to the Dais team that says something like this: "The delegate of X would like to be added to the General Speakers' List." After giving a speech, delegates should yield their remaining time.

Yielding

- After a delegate finishes his/her speech, the dais will ask: “Delegate, how would you like to use your remaining time?” Delegates are allowed to:
- Yield time back to the chair: This is the standard reply if delegates do not wish to do anything with their remaining time.
- Yield time to another delegate: If the delegate yields his/her time to another delegate, that delegate must use the remaining time to make his/her remarks.
- Yield time to questions and or comments : If the delegate yields his/her time to questions, other delegates in the committee room are allowed to ask him/her questions.

Motions

Motions are formal requests made by delegates to influence the meeting's procedures. They guide the flow of the debate and include requests such as opening or closing the debate, introducing a moderated or unmoderated caucus, or adjourning the meeting. Each motion is put to a vote, and if approved, it dictates how the committee will proceed, whether by allowing structured speeches, facilitating informal discussions, or ending the session. Motions help manage the agenda and ensure an organized and efficient conference.

Moderated Caucus

A Moderated Caucus is where delegates speak in a series of short, timed speeches on a specific topic. It breaks down the agenda into subtopics to find the root causes and helps in finding solutions. It is typically used to delve deeper into specific aspects of a topic or to address urgent issues.

To propose a Moderated Caucus, a delegate must raise a motion by saying, "The delegate of [Country] would like to raise a motion to start a moderated caucus on [Topic] for a total time of [Duration], with each delegate getting [Speaking Time]."

Note: Time Duration: The total time allocated for a moderated caucus should be divisible by the time duration assigned to each speaker. For example, if each delegate is allotted 1 minute, the total time should be a whole number that is evenly divisible by 1 minute (e.g., 10 minutes, 15 minutes) to ensure clear and organized management of the caucus. Avoid decimal times to maintain clarity and efficiency.

Unmoderated Caucus

An Unmoderated Caucus is a break from formal debate where delegates move freely around the room to discuss, negotiate, and draft resolutions or working papers. Unlike a Moderated Caucus, there is no formal speaking order or time limits. Delegates use this time to collaborate informally, build alliances, and refine their positions before presenting them in the formal sessions. To propose an Unmoderated Caucus, a delegate must raise a motion by saying, "The delegate of [Country] would like to raise a motion to start an unmoderated caucus for [Duration]."

Points

Points are used by delegates to address specific needs or concerns during a session.

1. Point of Personal Privilege

- Purpose: Used when a delegate experiences personal discomfort or an issue that hinders their ability to participate effectively in the session.

- Examples: Difficulty hearing the speaker, room temperature issues, or needing to use the restroom.

2. Point of Order

- Purpose: Raised when a delegate believes there has been a procedural mistake or a breach of the rules of procedure.
- Examples: Miscounting votes, incorrect procedure, or an out-of-order action by another delegate.

3. Point of Information

- Purpose: Used to ask a question to a speaker after they have finished their speech, typically during formal debate.
- Examples: Seeking clarification on a statement made, asking for elaboration on a point, or questioning the validity of a fact presented.

4. Point of Parliamentary Inquiry

- Purpose: Raised to ask the Chair about the rules of procedure or to clarify how the proceedings will move forward.
- Examples: Asking about the next step in debate, how to introduce a motion, or clarification on voting procedures.

Pleas and Rights

- Plea to Reply: Used to respond or provide clarification during points of information.
- Right of Reply: Exercised when the sovereignty or dignity of a country is insulted or undermined.
- Plea to Follow Up: Used to request clarification or continuation on a point previously raised.

METHOD OF VOTING

Delegates can vote for, against, or abstain on a proposal. Voting is usually done by showing placards, but any delegate can request a roll call vote for substantive matters. In a roll call vote, countries are called in alphabetical order (by their English names). Delegates can vote yes, no, abstain, or pass during the first round. Those who pass will be called again in a second round and must then vote either yes or no. If a delegation feels their vote requires explanation, they may declare they are "Voting with Rights" when casting their vote. The Chair may allow explanations after voting ends but before the result is announced.

VOTING RIGHTS

Each delegation present has one vote. Observer nations and NGOs cannot vote on substantive issues. Votes can be Yes, No, or Abstain, but abstentions are not allowed for procedural motions. "Present and voting" and refer to delegations that vote either Yes or No on substantive matters without abstaining.

Violation of Rules of Procedures

Violating the ROPs can lead to a temporary suspension in the committee according to the Executive Board member.

Order of Precedence determines which motions or points are considered first during a session.

- Point of Personal Privilege
- Point of Order
- Point of Parliamentary Inquiry
- Point of Information
- Motion to Set the Agenda
- Motion to Adjourn the Session/Meeting
- Motion to Extend the Speaking Time
- Motion for an Unmoderated Caucus
- Motion for a Moderated Caucus
- Motion to Introduce a Draft Resolution
- Motion to Introduce a Draft Amendment

DOCUMENTATION

WORKING PAPERS

1. Working papers are intended to aid with the work of the Committee and especially the Draft Resolution, as well as to present the viewpoints of the delegates and the potential solutions to the topic.
2. Working paper does not require any Signatories or Sponsors. However, it should bear the name of the delegate or delegates who proposed it.
3. There is no set format for the Working Paper, i.e. the working paper does not have to be introduced in the resolution format. The Working Paper is referred to by its designated number.

PRESS RELEASE

These are tools used by committees or individuals to inform “the public” in the crisis about certain facts, or to spread misinformation about the ongoing crisis. Main Components of a Solid Press Release • Header stating that it is a Press Release • Descriptive Headline • Information that you want the public to have and react to • Signature/s Goals • To inform/ misinform the public about the crisis to get the public to react in a certain way • To share information with the committee that was previously a secret • To encourage a response from the international community.

POSITION PAPER

A MUN Position Paper, also known as Policy Paper, is a strategic document that gives an overview of a delegates country position.

A good Position Paper has three parts:

- 1) Country’s Position on the Topic
- 2) Country’s Relation to the Topic
- 3) Proposals of Policies to Pass in a Resolution

SAMPLE POSITION PAPER

POSITION PAPER

COMMITTEE: United Nations Security Council

COUNTRY: Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan (IEOA)

AGENDA: Addressing the situation in Afghanistan post US withdrawal.

The Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan is a landlocked country situated in the heart of Asia (In between the Central Asia and South Asia), abiding by the Islamic, statutory, and customary rules presented to the country through its rich history, with regards to the Sharia law being put into order as the supreme law of the land. Afghanistan has been a battlefield throughout its history, whether it be for the western nations, or Deobandi Islamic fundamentalist and Pashtun nationalist militant political movements. Following decades of political unrest affecting every element of the country, the ruling government of the Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan, which ruled over 3/4 of it between 1996 and 2000 and the whole nation from 2021 until the present, has finally managed to preserve a common political footing.

While the nations observing the country as a non-dejure government, the Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan was made the de facto government (still not recognized by the UN), which successfully established 26 ministries, to establish a proper executive body in the nation. With that in place, the government was able to successfully establish an acting judicial body with some parts taken from the Afghan Constitution of 1964. This allowed the government to govern the nation while ensuring that the chosen sections were compliant with Sharia law and any other applicable laws or customs. In reference to the above given statement, the current Afghan government in regards to Article 25 (i.e. right to equality), Article 26 (i.e. right to liberty), Article 30 (i.e. freedom to secrecy), Article 31 (i.e. freedom of thought and expression) and other articles, the country is not running in dictatorship but rather a much more improvised form of rule in comparison to its previous reign during 1996-2001.

In addition to being able to stand on its own two feet following the invasion and change of governments, the Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan were also able to complete one of the quickest approaches of distributing humanitarian aid to its citizens thanks to the ongoing assistance and support from the United Nations through the UNAMA (United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan) and other UN organs. With a significant amount of time being spent on the formation of a proper governing body, the reigning government was successful to re-establish 2 service branches within 2 months of the hostile takeover. While re-establishing itself in various aspects, the IEOA failed to reestablish itself in the sector of its rapidly declining economy (with a rate of -20.7% as of 2020), with $9 billion dollars frozen by the United States, this amount would be one of the most important assets that could go towards the development of the country's economic development. Collecting a total of around $400 million dollars in revenue within just 4 months (i.e. 21 September 2021 to 21 December 2021), even though it is less than half of what the previous revenue collective presented (i.e. $900 million - $1,100 million dollars) before the transition in power during the same financial quarter a year before. With the ministry in line and all the financial offices set in order, the government is expecting to mobilize $1.2 billion - $1.5 billion dollars from revenue's alone. With the geographical advantage Afghanistan is not only rich when it comes to farming vegetables, rather the climate present here is the perfect for the production of Opium which can be used to form various medications, while the stream seems small the Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan has a lot of potential to expand its economy.

With the constant help being provided to the Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan by the UN, its allied organizations and all of its organs, these are some more ways the country could benefit and create an impact on the global society:

- Formation of the IEOACF (i.e. the Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan Co-operation Fund), and organization that grants the government of the country to carry out various development projects for the benefit of its citizens (the mandate for the following organization would be presented to the Security Council),
- Recognizing the reigning government of the Islamic Emirates of Afghanistan, as a legitimate government and giving the government a proper standing in the UN conferences to forth its views in international peace and order,
- Issuing a memorandum of association between the Security Council and the IEOA to establish scientific research facilities under the General Assembly inside of Afghanistan to research the possible future of medication through opium,
- With the help of the Organization of Islamic Corporation, establish a new constitution with reference to other Islamic countries following the sharia law,

RESOLUTION

A resolution is a formal document that outlines a proposed solution or course of action to address a specific issue or topic. It is drafted, debated, and amended by the committee members and, once passed, becomes a formal document representing the committee's consensus. Resolutions include preambulatory clauses and operative clauses.

- Preambulatory clauses set up the context of a resolution
- The Pre-ambulatory clauses state all the concerning matters that the committee wants to resolve on the topic and highlight the past international action on it. Each word in preamble begins with present particular and ends with coma.
- Operative clauses are the main substance of a resolution
- Operative Clauses are numbered and states the action to be taken by the body. The operative clauses should address the issues specifically mentioned in the pre-ambulatory clauses above it. The solution from the draft resolution are taken and combined with an operative phrase (like Stresses, Notes, Reaffirms, etc.) And end it with a semi-colon, except the last operative clause which ends with a period.

Please note: most UN committees cannot call for binding action (only recommendations)

Words like “requires,” “forces,” and “obligates” may not be used in operative clauses except for in committees that may pass binding resolutions, such as the UN Security Council
